OPENING OF CONGRESS!
PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 2.—President Hayes delivered his annual message to Congress today. He said:

Thanks to the Divine Being for His continued blessing upon our country, we are at peace with all nations. We are at peace with all nations.
Our credit is probably stronger than ever before; abundant harvests, reviving industries, and promised prosperity are reviews of our history. The yellow fever epidemic made a heartful appeal, and this pestilence has awakened very general public sentiment in favor of a national sanitary administration, which shall not only control the quarantine but have sanitary supervision of the internal commerce in time of epidemic, and hold an advisory relation with state, municipal and health authorities, with power to deal with whatever endangers the public health, and which municipal and state authorities are unable to regulate. The national quarantine act, approved April 20th, 1877, which was passed late in the last session of Congress to provide means for carrying it into practical operation during the past season, is a step in the direction here indicated. In view of the necessity for the most effective measures by quarantine and otherwise for protection of our seaports and the country generally from this and other epidemics, it is recommended that Congress give the whole subject an early and careful consideration.

Permanent pacification of the country by the protection of all citizens of every civilization and political right, continues to be of paramount interest with the great body of our people; every step in this direction is welcomed with public approval, and every interruption of steady and uniform progress to the desired consummation attracts general attention and widespread condemnation. The recent congressional elections have furnished a direct and trustworthy list of the advance of the right of suffrage, secured by the constitution to the liberated race in the Southern States, where all the disturbing influences, real or imaginary, had been removed from all of these States by three constitutional amendments, which conferred freedom and equality of civil and political rights upon the colored people of the South, were adopted by the concurrent action of the great body of good citizens who maintained the authority of the national government and the integrity and perpetuity of the Union at such cost of treasure and life as was never before known in the history of the Republic. The progress of the Union in the organic law of just peace and war. The people of the former slaveholding States accepted these results, and gave in every practicable form assurances that the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments, and the laws enacted in pursuance thereof, should, in good faith, be enforced rigidly and impartially in letter and spirit to the end that the humblest citizen, no regard to race or color, should under them receive full and equal protection in person and property and political rights. It will be for Congress and the people to see that these assurances are not only given, but are actually carried into effect. The President concurs in the recommendations of the secretary of war and interior that Congress provide for the organization of a corps of mounted Indian auxiliaries, to be under control of the army and be used to keep the Indians on their reservations, or to remove them to reservations. This would weaken the restless element among the Indians by giving a number of young men consensual employment, and would aid the army in the task for which its numerical strength is sometimes found insufficient. The President thinks, however, that although the force must occasionally be employed to prevent or repress Indian troubles and were a preparation made of that description, greater reliance must be placed upon the human and civilized agency for an ultimate solution of the Indian problem. It is alike our duty and interest to help the Indians attain the highest degree of civilization possible for them, and past experience with many troops affords great encouragement for a continuance of the civilizing policy. The President expresses the opinion as to whether or not the control of the Indian service should be transferred from the interior to the war department, but he hopes Congress in deciding that pending question will not overlook the considerations above indicated.

WASHINGTON.
WASHINGTON, December 2.—Anthony, Republican and Bayard, Democrat, were appointed a committee on the part of the Senate to inquire into the conduct of the House, and to report the President that a quorum of the two houses had assembled and were ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

Beck of Kentucky, introduced a bill to provide for retiring the "Trade Dollars" and for his recalculation into standard silver dollars.
Laid on the table to be referred to committee on finance when appointed. Also introduced a bill supplementary to title 4th Revised Statutes of United States, so as to authorize the purchase of foreign bonds and securities of the United States. Laid on the table to be referred to committee on commerce when appointed.

Voornes, of Indiana, submitted a resolution instructing the committee on finance to inquire into the conduct of the "Trade Dollars" legal tender for all debts, public or private, and providing for their recalculation into standard silver dollars of 412 1/2 cents. Laid over until the rule.

Haine, of Maine, submitted a lengthy resolution, instructing the judiciary committee to inquire into and to report to the Senate, whether at the recent elections, the constitutional right of any citizens of the United States were violated in any State of the Union and what legislation is necessary to protect citizens in their constitutional rights.

Lamar, of Mississippi; Harris, of Tennessee and Knies, of Louisiana, presented resolutions providing for the appointment of a joint committee of the House and Senate, to inquire into the cause and spread of yellow fever, and what legislation could be appropriate to prevent its introduction into the country, etc. Laid over until to-morrow.

Senate at 12:40 took recess of three-fourths of an hour, awaiting the President's message.
At 1:25 the Senate re-assembled and the committee appointed to wait upon the President, reported that they had discharged their duty. A few minutes afterwards the message was received from Mr. Rogers, the President's private secretary, and read immediately by secretary Thorburn.

Howe, both call showed 20 percent, then upon the credentials of two new members elected, Bailey to fill vacancy caused by death of Quennell of New York, Majors, of Nebraska, were presented and accepted with out question, and the iron clad oath administered.

A committee of three, Atkins, Cox and Garfield, were appointed to join the Senate committee to wait upon the President and inform him that Congress was in session. At 12:40 took a recess of one hour. At the expiration of the recess the President's message was received and read by the clerk.

When the reading of the message was ended, Wood, of New York, moved its reference to the committee of the Whole, and House, ordered it printed.

First, he desired to make some comments on it, although on the whole, the document was satisfactory, there were some references in it which should be met at the earliest practicable moment. He referred to that part people in defense of the primary rights of citizenship. They understood that protection of liberty requires the maintenance of suffrage and the full authority of the government.

The whole country is deeply interested in the growth and prosperity of all its parts. While the country has not yet reached a complete unity of feeling and reciprocal confidence between the communities so late and so seriously estranged, I feel an absolute assurance that the tendencies are in that direction, and with the increasing force and power public opinion will override all the political prejudices and all sectional or State attachments in demanding that all over our territory the same and character of citizen of the United States shall mean one and the same thing, and carry with them unchallenged security and respect. A favorable view is taken of the re-establishment of the Chinese legation in the United States, and it is made that the treaty looking to a further commercial intercourse between Japan and America had been made and would be submitted to the Senate for consideration. The President then refers briefly to the Halifax award, saying correspondence would be laid before Congress looking to the termination of the insurrection in Cuba. While expressing confidence in the strength of the Mexican government to repress the incursions on our territory, says at the earliest opportunity he will recognize their ability to restrain the marauding parties and hopes the coming international exposition in Mexico will tend to a better understanding and increase the communications between the two countries. He summarizes Sherman's report the President says.

In the present financial condition of the country I think that the welfare of legitimate business and industry of every description will be best promoted by abstaining from all attempts to make a radical change in the existing financial legislation. Let it be understood that during the coming year the business of the country will be conducted by the government and interference with the laws existing, and we may confidently expect that resumption of specie payments, which will take place at the appointed time, will be successfully and easily maintained, and that it will be followed by a healthful revival of business prosperity.

The creation of additional circuit judges is recommended as a remedy for the delay of justice, and possibly the oppression of suitors occasioned by the great increase in the business of the supreme court and of the courts of the circuits. The President concurs in the
interior that Congress provide for the organization of a corps of mounted Indian auxil-

Do They Cure Everything?
NO.—They are intended for diseases that re-
